

Don't Suicide

Friday, 12 October 2018

Life isn't always fair. We don't always get what we bargain for. The injustice is alarming. And the inequality is just sickening. We all want a perfect world. A world where we are accepted, appreciated and respected. A world we call home. However, not all of us live in this world. The divide is obvious. We can't understand why it isn't our world too.

We are angry, and rightly so. We feel used and robbed of what is rightfully ours. And the memory of these realities just lives on. We try, but we give in. "There is nothing I can do about it", we justify our inactions. So, we get angry for being angry. Then we begin to feel the world is laughing at us. We become too ashamed to face life. We decide to end it.

Just before we end it, there is someone who feels that way too. But he chooses to live. He lives because he can see beyond the present. He can see the good that the future holds. He doesn't sit and wait for the future to come to him. He goes out to create the future. Perhaps, we should go out too instead of sitting and letting the poison of anger eat us.
